

DAILY...
TUESDAY...
Glorious News To-Day—The Beginning of the End.

The long looked for time has arrived, and the spring campaign, for which the loyal heart has impatiently waited, has commenced in earnest. The wires to-day are telling the commencement of the story of Grant's strategy, on the tactics and brilliancy of which so much depends, not merely to us, but to all the world. Although we have not much definite information as to the glorious victory over rebellion which has, ere now, no doubt been achieved, enough is told in our dispatches to-day to show that Gen. Grant is ready, has begun his forward movement, and victory thus far has, as ever, gilded his banners. As nearly as we can judge, the plan of the campaign seems to be a forward movement from the Rappahannock by the army of the Potomac, under Meade and the other corps Generals; Burnside with a heavy force forming the left wing, circling around Lee's army at Orange Court House, and Graham with Butler's army taking Richmond in the rear, on the south side of the James River. The whole, under the direction of the Lt.-General. The details of this latter movement by way of the James River, are more full than those of the operations of the army of the Potomac. By a fine piece of strategy Butler led the enemy to believe that he was moving by way of York River with his gun boats and land forces, but suddenly transferring both to the James River, Gen. Graham in command, he took easy possession of City Point and other places not far from Richmond. It is not improbable that Petersburg has ere this fallen, and railroad communication between Richmond and North and South Carolina severed. Our dispatches do not state the number of troops under Gen. Graham, but he has with him the greater parts of the 10th and 18th army corps, numbering probably upwards of 50,000 men. From the front, where Grant personally superintends operations, the indications of hard fighting and victory on our part are strong. The medical and quartermasters' departments have sent from 6,000 to 8,000 wounded to the rear, and our troops are steadily advancing on the retreating Lee.

Thus pressed by an overwhelming army in front and with a large force in rear, the condition of the rebels is critical in the extreme. If Lee stop at or near Orange Court House to give battle to Grant, Graham will be in Richmond with a powerful army from the south side of the James. That Lee is in full retreat for the defenses of Richmond, can, therefore, hardly be doubted, closely pressed by the army of the Potomac. We await further advice with impatience, but with unbounded confidence in the strategy of Grant and the invincible gallantry of the army of the Potomac. That there may be nothing wanting to complete the picture of the utter overthrow of the armies of the rebellion, the telegraph flashes us the news that Thomas and Sherman are at work pressing forward on Dalton and Rome, Georgia, to crush Joe Johnson, while our troops in East Tennessee are not idle.

The war blazes from every point at once, and, thank God, rebellion at last trembles in the balance.

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.—The refreshing and continuous rains of the last few days have dissipated any latent apprehensions that may have been entertained as to the abundance of the coming crops, and we are happy to inform the outside world (people in Utah know it already) of two important facts—one being that in no former season has so much ground been sown in grain, and the second that the coming crops never promised more fairly than at the present time.

RENOVATION.—The attention of those in want of any work in this line, as the cleansing of coats, pants, vests, etc., is called to the advertisement of Mr. John Avondet. Ladies can have their dresses scoured, ribbons renewed and gloves cleaned in the best style and at low rates. Mr. Avondet's having carried on the same business in France, is a sufficient guarantee for his skill.

CITY

WASHINGTON, May 2d.
A gentleman who left Brandy Station on Wednesday, reports that up to that time there had been no fighting.
New York, May 5th.
Ocean Queen from Aspinwall, 32d with 40,000 in treasure arrived.

UNION MILLS, Va., May 6th.
The grand army of the Potomac crossed the Rapidan on Wednesday. The 2d corps moved on Tuesday to the mills opposite Smyth's Meeting House. No opposition. The position was gained and the corps moved on at 2 o'clock, taking the road to Chancellorsville, at which place Hancock would establish his head-quarters. The 5th and 6th corps crossed at Germania ford, taking the road to the wilderness. On Wednesday night Gen. Warren's head-quarters were at the wilderness, Sedgwick was at his right and the general head-quarters at Germania ford. On Thursday morning the rebels pressed our pickets and appeared to be in strong force on our right. The 5th New York cavalry skirmishing on the Orange Court House road near Perkin's Tavern, were driven in with severe loss, leaving many wounded on the field. Griffith's division was marched forward on our right about 11 o'clock, to feel the enemy's position and were met by the rebel Gen. A. P. Hill supported by Gen. Ewell. A severe action took place, in which we captured about 300 prisoners, although it is reported we lost two guns; meantime Hancock marched his corps to the right to connect with Warren and had hardly got into position, (his left resting on or near Chancellorsville) when he was attacked by Longstreet with his full corps and part of Ewell's. Hancock with the assistance of Getty's division of the 6th corps, was under a musket fire of two and a half hours duration, in which his command suffered severely, inflicting much injury upon the rebels. Other developments showed Lee to have his whole force in our front. This knowledge of their position was of course, highly important and thus obtained only by the greatest skill in handling our troops. It not being the purpose of Gen. Meade to advance our line he ordered line of battle to be held until morning. The position of our troops Thursday night was parallel with and a little in advance of the road from Germania ford to Chancellorsville, the two flanks resting on those points. General head-quarters are at the wilderness. Meanwhile in the afternoon of Thursday, the advance of the 9th corps crossed Germania ford, taking position on our right flank. Burnside's rear arrived on Thursday morning. It is understood that a general attack was to be made this morning. Heavy firing had commenced when I left at five o'clock, heavy cannonading was heard when I passed Kelley's ford about 9 o'clock, which leads to the belief that we had driven them to their defenses, as no heavy guns could be brought into action in their former position, there ought to be no doubt that there has been a grand victory, as Meade showed his strength by his stubborn and gallant defense without using half of his command which he has undoubtedly brought into action to-day. The troops are in a high state of enthusiasm.

New York, May 7th.
Times' Washington special says reliable intelligence from the valley of the Shenandoah represents it entirely clear of rebel troops.
Transports are loading at Alexandria for Urbana on the Rappahannock, which is our future basis of supplies. The Orange and Alexandria Railroad has been abandoned.

WASHINGTON, May 6th.
Information was received yesterday by Gen. Burnside, that a large force of rebels were moving south by way of Thoroughfare Gap. Burnside's at once sent off a large force of cavalry, who encountered the enemy while passing through Thoroughfare Gap; a skirmish ensued, in which a rebel Lieut. was wounded and fell into our hands, and on his person, orders were found signed by order of Gen. Lee, directing Imboden and all the cavalry force in Northern Virginia, to move at once and join Lee. These orders were dated the 4th.

FORTRESS MONROE, May 6th.
On Tuesday night, about half of a large fleet of transports that had been lying in the Roads for some time, were ordered to Yorktown, and commenced embarking troops; on Wednesday the rest of the fleet went up and took the remainder of the troops and then came back here. The whole then proceeded up the James river, passing here last night. The movement was concluded with great secrecy. The fleet advanced up the river preceded by an army of gunboats, under the command of Gen. Graham. During last night and to-day, a very successful landing was effected at Wilson's wharf, Fort Powhattan landing and Bermuda Hundred. No resistance was met with and no casualties occurred.

NEW YORK, May 7.
Herald's letter states that the rebel authorities are moving the Tredgar iron works to some point south of Richmond. A Newport News' letter says the iron-clads Atlantic, Roanoke and Orangoa moved up James river some days ago. The Herald also reports that a heavy column under Sigel moved up the Shenandoah valley, from Martinsburg, several days since. Gen. Averill is cooperating from another direction, with his cavalry. A Newbern letter states the rebel ram had left Roanoke river, got into the Sound and quietly stole up some other river for the purpose of drawing off our gunboats.

WASHINGTON, May 7.
Up to midnight Government had no official information in regard to the battle between Meade and Lee. Grant has cut off all communications between his lines and Washington, and no one can pass his pickets except his own special courier. Our loss in killed and wounded is said to have been four thousand, including many officers of distinction.

WASHINGTON, May 8th.
The following is official:
Off City Point, Va., May 5th. To General Grant:—We have seized Wilson's wharf, landing a brigade of Wild's colored troops there. Two regiments of the same brigade landed at Fort Powhattan landing. Hind's division landed at City Point, and the remainder of both the 18th and 10th corps landed at Bermuda Hundred, above the Appomattox. The movement was apparently a complete surprise. Both army corps left Yorktown during last night. The monitors are all over the bar at Harrison's landing, and above City Point. Generals Smith and Gilmore, are pushing the landing of the men. Gen. Graham with an army of gunboats led the advance during the night and captured the rebel signal stations.

Signed: BUTLER.
WASHINGTON, May 8th.
An official dispatch from Gen. Butler sent yesterday, says demonstrations have been made by our forces against the railroad between Petersburg and Richmond and succeeded in destroying a portion of it, so as to break communication. There has been some severe fighting. Government up to 10 o'clock to-night are without any particulars of Friday's fight.

The National... says we are not able to state the result of the fighting Thursday and Friday, but it is all that the most sanguine friends of the Government can desire. Dawn of day Saturday exhibited no evidence of the presence of the enemy. Gen. Grant with great promptness took advantage of their flight and ordered a forward movement. It is believed Lee is hastening to Richmond, not only to save the remnants of his army, but prevent if possible, the rebel capital falling into our hands. We are in possession of information that the rebel authorities in Richmond seeing the fate which awaits the city, have taken measures to remove everything of value from the city. We have 10,000 wounded, this includes both sides. No lists of killed and wounded have been received.

WASHINGTON, May 8.
The Star of to-day says the only official information from the army of the Potomac, is derived from dispatches of the Medical Director and the Quartermaster, to their respective Bureaus. The wounded, numbering from six to eight thousand, have been sent from the battle-field to Rappahannock Station, and will thence be forwarded to Washington. A portion of them had arrived at Rappahannock. But few casualties are reported among them. Gen. Hancock was killed, and Gregg, Getty and Owens wounded. Two of Burnside's staff were killed while carrying orders.

LOUISVILLE, May 7.
The construction train collided with Smith's passenger train, from Louisville, near Gallatin, Tenn., yesterday. Both engines were smashed, three soldiers killed and seven wounded—a few fatally.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION VEDETTE.]

New York, May 8th.

Times' correspondent from James river the 5th, speaking of Butler's movement, says the project, in which the Lieut. Gen., after careful examination fully acquiesced, was to advance on Richmond by the James river, get a foot-hold as near the city as possible on the south bank of the stream, interrupt communication with the Rebel Capital southward, and eventually compel evacuation by Lee's army of their strongly fortified position on the Rapidan, thus forcing the rebels to give Grant battle, or move rearward to the walls of their capital. The first step towards organization was made some weeks since by the concentration at Yorktown, from various posts in North Carolina and Virginia, of the great bulk of the 18th corps. With this, nearly all the 10th corps, under Gilmore, was sent to Butler to participate in the movement.

That Yorktown and Gloucester Point, both at the mouth of York river, should have been selected for the rendezvous of these troops, naturally led to the supposition that the advance was to be made up the Peninsula. That deception might be doubly sure, a brigade of Union troops was dispatched by Gen. Butler as late as yesterday, to White House landing, where at sunset they were zealously engaged in felling trees and constructing a military wharf, as if in preparation to facilitate the landing of a large army. All light draft steamers were until the last moment kept at Monroe, whence early yesterday morning they were dispatched to the York river and the work of embarking troops, whose arrangements had all been previously made. Gen. Butler's orders to his subordinates required them to repair to Hampton Roads as quickly as possible, where they should anchor for the night. At daybreak the advance of the troops moved up the James river conveyed by an army of gunboats under Graham, and five monitors and eleven gunboats under Rear Admiral Lee. The cavalry branch of the expedition was commanded by Gen. Kautz, who with several thousand white troops left Suffolk, Va., also at daylight yesterday morning. The point at which he aims primarily is Hickford on the Petersburg, Richmond and Weldon road.

Gen. Kautz received a roving commission, and may penetrate as far as Weldon, starting up the Peninsula. Another smaller cavalry force set out at the same time, its object being to create a diversion in our favor by keeping the rebels excited and attacking outposts. This expedition will try to cross the Chickahominy at Bottoms Bridge, and make its way to the main body of the James river. Gen. Butler has taken possession of Wilson's wharf and Fort Powhatan. The distance between the two points is seven miles; both of them are strong positions. City Point became ours without a struggle. The Union forces are securely planted in a splendidly advantageous position within 15 miles of the rebel Capital. Before night fall the greater part of the immense army will be disembarked. Our line will stretch across the narrow strip of land—the right resting on the James river and then passing over the Appomattox, will prolong the line so that it will reach to the James river again, holding that almost insular position called Bermuda Hundred. Entrenched here, with both flanks protected by gunboats, we can bid defiance to the rebels. This position is also considered admirable for so seriously threatening Richmond. Lee's army is now between two fires, and should our cavalry raid seriously impair his communications with the South, starvation will be added to his other troubles.

WASHINGTON, May 8th.

Reports from the front to 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, say there have been two days severe fighting. On Thursday and Friday it was believed the enemy were retreating. Our wounded were being sent to the rear, showing that we had lost no ground. It is believed our forces are pressing forward. Reports from Chattanooga to five in the afternoon, Saturday, say McPherson is operating against the enemy's communication with Rome through Atlanta and Rome. The Washington Star says, were we at liberty to mention facts within our knowledge, we could demonstrate that Lee has occasion to dread the strategy of our military operations, as well as the rigor with which they have been pressed. The line of attack made by Lee in fighting, on Thursday and Friday, was nearly at right angles with Grant's line of advance, Orange Court-House being his base and Headquarters. The forced march of a day and night by Burnside from Manassas, by which he got his troops to Grant's support on Thursday night, is said to have even surpassed his brilliant forced march in East Tennessee, by which he surprised the enemy there.

FORTRESS MONROE, May 7th.

On the 5th inst., the 1st and 2d regiments, colored cavalry, under Col. West, made a dash across the Chickahominy, and two companies dashed into the camp of the 46th Virginia cavalry, killing thirty rebels and pursued them within ten miles of Richmond. On the 6th our forces who had landed at City Point, moved on Petersburg when the enemy immediately set fire to the place and abandoned it. On the morning of the same day the gunboat Commodore Jones while on picket duty in the James river, near Turkey bend, was blown up by a torpedo. Several officers were killed, and fifty men killed and wounded.

New York, May 9th.

The Times' special from Washington the 8th says: The latest news received from the army was up to 7 o'clock yesterday evening, up to which time, Grant fully maintained his position. The fighting on Thursday and Friday, was very severe, with only skirmishing on Saturday. Lee's first onset was made upon our left, then fell upon our center, and finally upon the right, where the hardest contest took place; here the rebels charged upon our lines twice, but were repulsed each time with a severe loss. Hancock's corps charged back twice, and at one time entered that portion of the enemy's entrenchments commanded by A. P. Hill, but at length were compelled to fall back. Seymour's division, and Hancock's corps, were badly cut up. Generals Wadsworth and Bartlett, were badly wounded. The rebels were reported retreating yesterday morning.

WASHINGTON, May 8.

At midnight a special correspondent, writing from Headquarters, Wilderness Tavern, Friday evening, gives the following intelligence of the great battle on Friday: Day has closed upon a terrible fought field. The army of the Potomac has added another to its many murderous conflicts. Lee's tactics, so energetically employed at Gettysburg, and Chancellorville of throwing his whole army first upon one wing and then upon another, has again been brought to bear, but the army of the Potomac has repulsed the enemy with tremendous onslaught, and stands to-night in the same position it assumed this morning. The first attempt was made upon our right, somewhat weakened in numbers by the battle of yesterday, but the old 2nd corps nobly stood its ground. The enemy hurled battalions upon Sedgwick, and once or twice gained temporary advantage, but the old veterans of this corps nobly rallied, and repulsed the rebels with fearful slaughter. About half past four Lee made a feint upon the whole line, then suddenly fell with his whole force upon Sedgwick, driving him back temporarily, but the advantage was soon regained and the rebels hurled back with great loss. It is believed at Headquarters that Lee has withdrawn from the front. Although he has been signally repulsed in all his attacks, nothing but the nature of the battlefield prevented it from being a crushing defeat. The loss on both sides is heavy, but at this hour I cannot give an estimate. Advice, believed to be trustworthy, represent Butler has cut all railroad communications south of Richmond.

New York, May 9th.

The Copperheads comment at length upon the situation, but owing to the meagre accounts of operations received thus far, are cautious in their opinions.

The Tribune says, it cannot undertake to say from any information yet received, that Grant won a decisive victory on the Rapidan, but, nevertheless, believes that regarded as a part of the campaign movements, the battles of last week are an assurance of final success.

The Herald says, all thus far known of the operations of our armies, are full of encouragement, and it seems safe to believe we are successful on the whole.

Butler's operations South of Richmond go on admirably. The news from Sherman's department is also good.

The Times says, from all we can learn or judge, we think a highly favorable view of the battle and its results, may be taken.

The World says, we await the result not without hope, but still with much apprehension.
